Golden Peak Media's mission is to help fine artists, crafting artisans and art collectors by inspiring, educating and connecting them throughout their journey. Through print publications, competitions, events and more, Golden Peak helps millions of people explore their passions and take their craft to the next level.

We are seeking a remote editorial intern for Southwest Art, which provides fine art collectors insights on the Southwestern art market through a bimonthly print magazine, social media channels and website. The ideal candidate has a strong passion for fine art and culture and will be eager to learn about print and digital editorial processes.

Essential Responsibilities:

- Writing articles for print and digital platforms (including interviews)
- Writing copy for social media posts
- Writing longer feature articles, as appropriate
- Researching for ongoing and short-term projects
- Assisting with editing of articles and administrative tasks as assigned

Qualifications:

- Strong writing and communication skills
- Wit and a sense of humor
- Excellent attention to detail
- Demonstrated passion for the arts and culture
- Enrollment in or recent graduation from a degree program in journalism, communications, art history or a related field preferred

This is an unpaid internship, but it provides an excellent opportunity to gain practical experience in the editorial process of a leading art magazine. The intern will have the chance to work closely with the editor-in-chief and have their work published in a professional setting. We are happy to work with you to receive college credit for this internship.
